The Country Coming to Its Senses.

Congress will not be able to stand the pressure of accumulating misfortune. The man who can go to Washington this fall, and, in the face of what has happened and what threatens, refuse his vote to holp repeal the aliver bill, will need to holp repeal the aliver bill, will need to have a sail of consensor his panishment. It will not happen. We believe that the report of sentiment in Congress is accurate and will be supported by facts. The dilastrone seprefences of the past will have purchased for us the repeal of the Sherman law, without any step toward free coinage or the issuance of wildest hank notes. The country is about to exercise its sober sence, and to declare that antional solvency shall be maintailed.

You are even able to look down, upon the booths far leneath and note how small the people appear from your post of observation. Here lies the British acction, there ties of the United States, beyond those of Iloiland, Spain and Japen. The great bronze statue is the term an partition seems no longer great, but the entire standing army of the Empire of Germany might he assembled beneath the roof of this building. The statement gives one some slight notion of what a covering there is over this "largest building of the kind ever constructed," as the guide book health it. Now thet you are form the supports, with a feeling of admiration the mind is wholly given up to the contemplation of these great arches, lasianced, as it were, on a mere point. Upon reaching the termina, you find that it is necessary to mount higher still by statis, then cross the building through out upon a platform extending along the roof.

Having passed beyond the range of these wonders you are gled to rest awhile and look out over the lake. There the white gulls are skimming and darting down into the water, sending slowers of drops in every direction; the ever classing colors of the lake varying from white ages of the colors of the lake varying from white salls of vessels, with the clouds floating green, dotted here and there by white salls of vessels, with the clouds floating above makes a restiful and elarming picture. With a sligh of regret you turn into the passegs way and descend to the ground floor, feeling that, although mas has accomplished marvelous things, there are yet greater heights to climb. So much for the trip around the roof of the Mannfactures Building.
